

Environmental management: Benefits of ISO 14001

Risk minimisation and cost reduction with system

Your Needs = Our Challenge

The environmental impacts of companies in all industries are becoming an increasingly important issue. New, stricter environmental laws increasing costs of environmental resources and waste disposal are key issues for managers. Efficient environmental management systems help to reduce costs, to minimise risks, to improve relations with the authorities and to enhance the image.

Our Experience = Your Advantage

APPLICATIO for many years supports successfully the building of EM systems in SMEs, public sector organisations and in international companies. APPLICATIO provides customised consulting, facilitation and training with extensive experience working with organisations from different industries and environments. The experts from APPLICATIO know the requirements of ISO 14001 and help anchor a certifiable environmental management system in your organisation.

Our Service = Your Key to Success

APPLICATIO experts support you in the most important steps for setting up and implementing an environmental management system according to ISO 14001, for example:

- Qualification of Environmental Management Officer
- Analysis of relevant legal requirements
- Definition of environmental policy and objectives
- Analysis and documentation of environmental processes and procedures
- Creation of the Environmental Management Manual and the documentation
- Training of employees
- Preparation and implementation of internal audits
- Preparation for the external certification

An example:

A bank wanted not only to be a good role model for customers, but also wanted to exploit the possibilities of cost savings associated with energy, water and waste. Together with experts from APPLICATIO a practical Environmental Management System according to ISO 14001 has been developed and introduced.

In addition to significant cost savings, the organisation notes that employees and customers are more satisfied and loyal ... a great success!

This offer/service represents an example. All services of APPLICATIO are generally tailor-made based on the individual needs of the clients.
